ENGLISH

Michael B. Coyle
B.A. Berea College
M.A. Vanderbilt University

Martha D. Bain
A.B. Georgetown College
M.A. University of Kentucky

The English Department offers two semesters of freshman composition, advanced freshman composition, journalism, public speaking, technical communications, reading and writing labs, several literature courses, composition for technical students, and various humanities courses. Non-credit English classes have supplied the students with the basic fundamentals if they feel a need for a more stable foundation before entering regular composition classes.

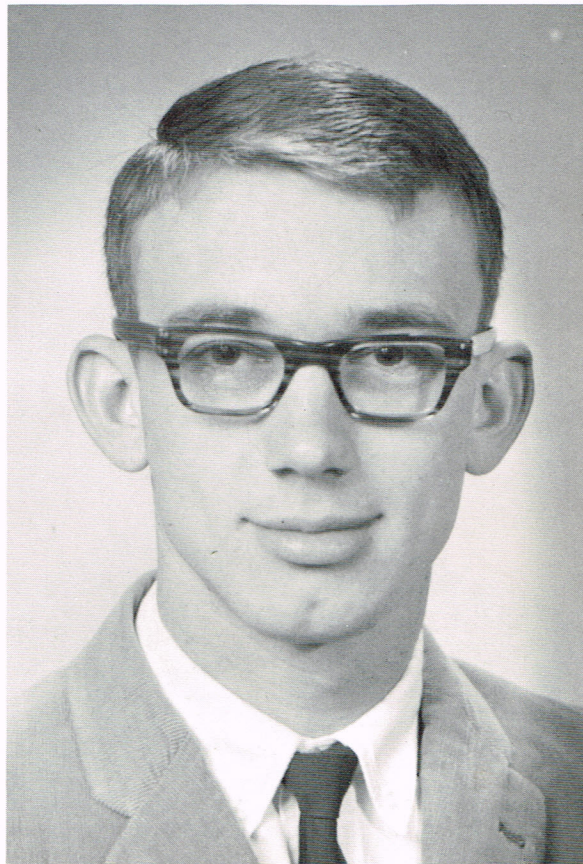

J. Robert Hill
A.B. Western Kentucky State College
M.A. George Peabody College

The Honors Reading Program is offered to those students at Elizabethtown Community College who have earned a 3.0 or better average. Students participating in the program read various selections in fiction and the Classics. Upon completion of this program, which requires passing a comprehensive examination and maintaining a 3.5 or higher grade point standing, a student will be graduated With High Honors.

ENGLISH

Marshall D. Myers
B.A. Kentucky Wesleyan College
M.A. Eastern Kentucky University

ENGLISH

No matter what course of study a student may decide to follow, he finds that he cannot escape taking several English courses. Although many students bewail this mournful situation, it should be noted that upon completion of such courses as freshman composition, most students realize the necessity of taking the course. For what a student learns in freshman composition, or any English course, he will be able to use throughout his life.

The purpose of Kappa Phi Kappa is to serve the community to the best of their ability by upholding the ideas of sisterhood, femininity, and by Christian morality.

The sorority maintained these ideals in various ways during the past year. They sponsored a summer fashion exhibit with the proceeds going toward a scholarship fund; they held a slave sale at the beginning of the year in which the sorority pledges were put on the "auction block", with prices ranging from twelve cents to ten dollars; the sorority held a retreat at Otter Creek for both actives and pledges; and the sorority won the first place trophy for overall achievement in the Little Bitty Kentucky Derby festivities.

Would you believe that some people actually study!?!

"Waiting for Godot."

Although some Sophomores lack manners, you will find that they are still very friendly.
